

Quiz Q & A: The Working Life of Two Famous Writers

Agatha Christie and Sue Monk

These two women share a similar experience besides writing popular fiction, but each used their experience in different ways. What is the shared experience and how did it help each in their creative work?

Answer posted at the end of this post

Answer

Christie and Monk were nurses, a profession in which having the aptitude Graphoria is essential for nursing and writing fields, according to Johnson O'Connor Research Foundation.

Christie reportedly loved being a nurse but not Monk. Christie used knowledge learned as a nurse as a source of inspiration for the poison plotlines in her books. (An interesting yet unsettling detail.)

Takeaway: It is difficult to create work-life balance when placed in a routine that is not compatible with core aptitudes. Monk would have found the routine tasks of nursing stifling if

Ideaphoria was her primary aptitude.

Dee Adams is the author of Finding Your Niche: Discover...

<http://nichecreativity.com/finding-your-niche-ebook/>

References

Pbs.org/Wgbh/Masterpiece Christie
Six by Agatha

<http://tinyurl.com/o7yhjxd>

Johnson O'Connor Research Foundation

<http://www.jocrf.org/>

Agatha Christie.com

<http://www.agathachristie.com/about-christie/christies-life/>

Oprah.com

<http://tinyurl.com/ob5a5fb>

Oprah Talks with Sue Monk about the Invention of Wings