

Time Management Pitfalls in the Workplace

Why a Skier Fell Down On the Job...1600 Feet

While filming a movie, and rushing at the end of the day to capture one last shot nearly had one they would not have wanted.

With 15 minutes of natural lightning left the crew had a video shot to complete and the skier admits he overlooked taking the time to complete a careful visual surveillance of the terrain and was blindsided by the unexpected drop, according to Good Morning America.

A sobering graphic reminder that rushing through any activity is an invitation to an accident.

That the skier survived is a miracle but so are the sales that the Airbag Backpack will likely rack up. Check out one review that debated the pro and con of the product controversy nearly a year ago.

Dee Adams is the author of Finding Your Niche: Discover...
<https://nichecreativity.com/finding-your-niche-ebook/>

Reference

<https://www.wildsnow.com/3736/airbag-overview/>