

Voice Power

Virtual Coaching

Each year more than 3 million people are injured and disabled on the job, according to government statistics. Many individuals are forced to change careers and some turn to self-employment. Assistive technology tools, such as voice-activated software, are enabling countless people to find new ways to work.

However, getting proper training can often be a problem, and many people buy the software but give up without learning of its many benefits and how to use it properly. Check out this site for useful tips and free YouTube demo videos.

Reference

<http://www.voiceteach.com/home.html>