

Why Decline in Startup Statistics May Mean Little to Would-Be Entrepreneurs

Bucking the Trend

The recent Babson College entrepreneur study documenting a decline in entrepreneurship growth does not point out the following. When finding a traditional job is challenging, self-employment or entrepreneurship becomes a path of necessity for some regardless of statistics or the economy.

Take the example of Representative Darrell Issa who revealed that his father faced career change after suffering a heart attack, and decided on entrepreneurship. And there are related self-employment statistics cited by journalist and author Steven Hillin Raw Deal...

References

Babson.edu/Global Entrepreneurship Monitor Report/2016
<http://tinyurl.com/hjypezl>

TechTransferCentral.com

<http://tinyurl.com/hrk5jm5> Babson Report 2011 Babson 2011

C-Span vIdeos

After Words with Rep. Darrell Issa

<http://tinyurl.com/hvfj9xo>

Book Talk/Raw Deal...

.http://tinyurl.com/judvhcp

US entrepreneurship declines in 2015, reversing 4 years of upward growth